Buy at Home Campaign Cry

We have very frequently made mention in this paper in advocating home buying. Frankly we do not upon our readers in our own humble way, the obligations which they owe to the community in which they live.

One of the chief obligations is to patronize home institutions. Do not send to Winnipeg, Toronto or to other eastern cities for goods which can be purchased in your home town. Some general information on this matter is given by The Lethbridge Lethbridge's big broker, and is published in the Lethbridge Daily Herald of Friday last, from which we deem it appropriate to clip the following and trust that the advice will be practiced by all our citizens:

"It's almost criminal habit of ours to buy things in other towns than our own goods if one can't afford to stop there. It strikes at the roots of our city's success, and will kill the growth of any city quicker than almost anything you can name. It is killing the business of your merchants." It cost this city last year an incredible amount of money.

It would stagger you if the amount were known, and this is killing the patronizing of the small and honest houses of the east nothing but a habit.

Women forget how to shop when they do this. And some of the best men are just as bad. You, business men are criminals if you do not trade in your own city. I have seen cities ruined by the same pattern as ours, and other houses of the east nothing but a habit.

It cost the city last year an incredible amount of money. It would stagger you if the amount were known, and this is killing the patronizing of the small and honest houses of the east nothing but a habit.

Would you believe it if I told you that it was that, and nothing else, that brought Baltimore to a standstill?

In our first big meeting there I went after the chairman because he was wearing a suit by some New York firm, and told him he ought to wear a suit by some local manufacturer. He admitted it and said: "never again!"

"Get the habit of doing your shopping in your own city. Practice it everywhere. Why should you build up a business in another town?"

At the suggestion of the community, put the bread and butter into your mouth! Get the preachers of the city to preach it. They couldn't preach a better religion than one which builds up the community in which they work."

"Be straight with your own people. Help them help themselves. The community at large must help them in this way at least. People will get better satisfaction at home, and will get out of the habit of buying what they don't need."

A brick plant is being erected at Sandstone, twenty miles south of Calgary. This plant will be completed in June and will have a capacity of 500,000 bricks a week.

Happenings in and Around Bellevue

We regret to report that Mrs. Carter has been taken ill.

J. J. Walters has gone East to join his wife in a few weeks holiday.

Alex. Cameron had to appear in court on Saturday for carelessly driving a horse. $1 and $2 costs were paid.

Two Slavs were up before Justice Gresham on Saturday for being drunk and disorderly. They were each fined $5 and costs.

The service in the church Sunday night was most enjoyable. Fred Paget took part with credit to himself. Everybody invited next Sunday night.

From news to hand we learn that Mr. Holroyd and W. H. Holroyd have arrived at St. John on their way to Europe. It is reported that the senior son has suffered a stroke of the heart. What about W. H.?

The school board trustees held a meeting on Friday night and voted in the question of the new school thoroughly. The plans are to band and these were examined, one or two alterations such as the addition of fire escape from the second storey window etc., were suggested and it was decided to proceed by regular methods cautiously yet quickly.

W. Ryan was up before Justices Felscher and Gresham on Saturday last to answer two charges which were brought against him. One was for assault at Passburg and the other for cruelty to animals. He was found guilty of both charges and for the first offence he was asked to pay into the exchequer the sum of $27.00, failing this he would be allowed two months free board at Macleod. He paid the fine.

The football match between married and single men on Monday afternoon was watched by nearly all the people of the town. The result was decided in favor of the single men who scored 6 "single" goals. The married men scored 2 "double goals" so the result is 6-4.

It is a question whether each of the two teams will go to the semi-final three, for nearly all have families of more than two to support and if the question is answered in the affirmative the result is a draw. The brothers Dundale will make a splendid back defense for the league team, Fisher's work is goal promising well for a goal average against Blairmore.

The football committee met last week and resolved upon reporting progress. A match was arranged for Saturday May 13 between the married and single men and the boys who had ordered for league work. In spite of the bad conditions which have prevailed here for months, there is abundant material for a good team and everyone looks forward to a successful sporting season.

The officers of the Association in Bellevue for the ensuing year are: J. Lindsey, president; Frank D. Miller, Vice-president; S. A. Page, Trustee; and the committee, E. Coupland, G. Bateman, H. Campbell, J. Ellison, F. Chappell and Rev. T. D. Jones.

The presidency will be well filled by J. Lindsey. He is known all through the Pass and is acquainted with all the ropes of league work.

Donald Reid, aged 23 years, and George Lewis, aged 17 years escaped from the Mounted Police barracks at Lethbridge, on Sunday morning and have not yet been found.

The Bonnington is the largest steamer on the inland waters of British Columbia. She is 388 feet long, 38 feet wide and is built of steel.

Love and a Laundry Check

The Way Two Lovers Escaped
Romantic.

By MABEL D. CALHOUN
Copyright by American Press Association.

"Well—I'll be Jugged!"
Chris Webb brought his horse to a standstill and stared at the small square of yellow paper that fluttered from his pocket. It was a willow leaf of the day before, and he could see a piece of paper covered with marks and figures on its surface. "I don't know why he dug his knees into Dixie's shoulders, and as she sprang forward Chris leaped over and caught her, trying to pull her down. He had to let her go, though, because he was held. Then he scanned it closely and uttered a long groan.

Plainly it was a Chinese laundry check, and represented its owner as a man in a state of extreme despair that probably lay unconcious in the wash house of some moon faced Chinaman.

A laundry check found on the sidewalk in town is a common occurrence. A laundry check discovered in an obscure corner of a city or town in Arizona becomes a matter for considerable interest, especially if one has just concluded himself that this particular laundry has been fed to the foot of civil man.

"There isn't a Chin laundry within fifty miles," said Chris. "I'm sure I'd strike a new trail, and after naming that gully and all I find that."

Hours afterward when he rolled drowsily up to the bunk house and turned Dixie over to the friendly preferred service, he was asked for some comment on his extended absence.

"Where's the critter?" asked Henderson, making room for his comrade at the table and passing Webb's cup to be filled.

"I repaid Christopher," he replied.

"Repaid? Oh, I don't know what he was up to with that devilish bazaar hanging around, so—" he paused for another draft of coffee.

"Repaid? Yes, sir!"
"Repaid, and then I shot the bazaar."

"That's damned indelicate," said Peter, filling his pipe. "Who'd stop to buy a strayed critter after chasing her two miles?"

"I did," he said. "Christopher, his strong white teeth biting deep into a hunk of corn bread. "I followed the trail cleft through the bushes and rocks and vines and then I met him. After awhile I saw a buzzard high in the air, and I guessed what had happened to him. I guess he was a critter under a twisted cottonwood."

"Dead?" questions Peter.

"Alive. On the way back I didn't have her with me, with that devilish bazaar hanging around, so—" he paused for another draft of coffee.

"Repaid? Yes, sir!"
"Repaid, and then I shot the bazaar."

"Not guilty?" they cried in chorus, and Peters continued, "I think a chap would be bound to open his shirt on the Three Forks outfit—not since Finky Fleming was took for a good and a hardy man I'd die again through the sliced shirt."

"Since then sliced shirt has been looked on like sudden death," put in Henderson, who had been watching Mrs. nobody on Little Forks wearing bashed shirts.

"Anybody know where there's a Chin laundry?" demanded Peter impatiently.

"I expect there's one in Tucson," suggested Christopher, "and there's a laundry there, too."

"I remember shooting up a Chin laundry there. That was a long time ago," he added hastily.

"The Chin laundry is a Chin laundry nearer than Tucson?" said Peter.

"How about Cactus Branch?" suggested Redwood, from his bunk.

"I remember once when I was passing the Lone Horn—was going to the roundup at the Branch, you know. I thought I'd be lucky if I could find me a house to have a laundry there and get a check for it. It's an oiling nature," he said, "but if they didn't take a big, squatly check."

"And you?"
Peter's eyes lit up in his lean brown fingers and drew a light from Henderson's smoke. "Which one of your towns is wearing bashed shirts?" he asked.

"Not guilty?"

"Repaid? Yes, sir!"
"Repaid, and then I shot the bazaar."

"I was roped in for the job I know most about," he said. "I was on the trail all the way back. Well," he paused and eyed his companions dubiously, "you all recollect the roundup at Cactus Branch?"

"Being as it only happened last week, we have strong reollections," confessed Chris, rubbing his head thoughtfully. "We all know all about you all about you. Redwood, and you sure didn't take the trail by the Lone Horn when you can't ride, and you don't been off that critter?"

"That's right," admitted Redwood gloomily.

"What happened?"

"I left the squatly bashed all right, and the Chin said it would be 4 bits, and I paid him a piece of paper covered with ink and figures—that is, I don't know where the blashed paper is now." He brightened suddenly and said his mate, "Chris, I recollect me a man with a squatly will o' wisp. I was short of sugar about that time."

Henderson laughed loudly. "You'd have known it if you'd smelt it," he said. "I recollect that girl don't git to the dance, why, I don't know what she done, but she do." "I've seen her," said Peter, smiling.

"If this is her?" asked Peters sympathetically.

"She's a peroxide," quoted Mr. Henderson.

Chris got upon his feet and tossed away the end of his cigarette. "Wait till you know when you come back from the roundup," he yawned paternally.

Redwood shooed his head hopefully.

"I must have got lost, for I was three days getting back here, and had no place to eat."

"I recollect that girl don't git to the dance, why, I don't know what she done, but she do." "I've seen her," said Peter, grinning.

"Mr. Webb's all agapour increased."

SHEFFIELD PLATE.

Collector's Plate Is Made by Dido Winn Sterling Silver.

Late in the eighteenth century there was developed in Sheffield, England, a process of silvering upon copper or brass which was christened with the name of the town.

Assuming silver to be the most valuable metal, the English were fond of silver upon copper or brass which was more abundant and less expensive.

It was at once recognized and copied by the French who had a taste for silver, and made only the joints and corners of their articles of silverware, and not the entire pieces.

It was not until the middle of the last century that the English began to use silver plate in earnest.

The standard of silver in England, which is also our own, has remained practically unaltered for 500 years.

The heavy base plates used for about four centuries have been in use for about 200 years, but the test of wear proved it too soft to be used for plates.

Then came the lighter base plates, and the standard of silvering was substituted for the heavy base plates.

The standard of silver in England is also the mark of the office in which it is assayed, and the assay office is located in London.

It is the assay office which gives the standard of silver to each article.

FITTING THE EWES FOR EARLY LAMBS.

Among the problems that confront the early lamb grower the one of feeding holds a prominent place. It is a problem that is not too far, and the sheep are dropped to force both sheep and lamb to eat more rapidly.

The method of feeding, however, is a great difference of opinion, but it is my purpose here to describe a method which has been used for several years and one which seems economical.

The sheep are housed in the morning and are fed oats and bran, and the lambs are fed salt and water.

The lambs are fed salt and water all the time. The cornstarch is given in small amounts three times a day.

The stalks from the field are given in large amounts, and the lambs are fed salt and water.

The proud boast of Sir John MacDonald, "A British subject I was born to be," which one which cannot be refuted for Fort Arthur, for he first saw the sun rise at the fort in 1867.

He was born to be a soldier, and the call of the blood brought him to the ranks of the Canadian Legion.

News of World-Wide Interest From the Canadian Metropolis

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Montreal, May 3.—With the problem of accommodating a population of one million five years hence staring her in the face, Montreal is planning to rob Father Neptune nearly a square mile of territory in an effort to provide additional room. As far as the case of many similar cities the plan in question is a poor one, but it is a fact that the scheme will bring in millions of dollars. It will start from the river involving an amount of land which will be worth something like a million dollars. The idea originated with an engineer who has acted in a consulting capacity in the erection of some of the largest buildings in the city, and has made a specialty of foundation and caisson work. His idea, in brief, is to lengthen the island of Montreal by the erection of sea walls, behind which the space could be filled by pumping sand from the channel. Commercial at the scheme may sound at first hearing there appears to be no reason why it should not be carried out, since the value of the made land will far exceed the cost of its creation. Of course, initial borings and surveys have been made it is impossible to more than roughly estimate the cost of such an undertaking, but it is believed that it would not only pay for itself but would leave a handsome profit besides.

It is well over a year now since Johnny Woods, an expert second storey rafter, had to jump from a window stepped out to freedom, and announced that all was not at rest should he be behind the walls of St. Vincent's "D" Penitentiary where he had been confined for five years previous for robbing the home of ex-Major Egan whilst His Worship, and family, were abroad. Johnny is a smooth, well-educated young Englishman, and he tells a good story. The newspaper took him up and he became famous in the world. It is believed that cocaine, rum, dope, or any kind of pipe or smoke to wash, dainties, tobacco, even knives and razors, were bartered and exchanged within the walls of the "pen" as freely as they could be outside. Coin of the realm was the standard of trade, although, if short, an ordinary plug of tobacco cut in ten slices stood for fifty cents. From outside appearances Johnny's tales did not ruffle one whit the equanimity of the prison officials, the inspectors or the Department of Justice, but it has been learned since that almost as soon as he had spoken, a searching investigation was ordered through the Dominion police. Now it turns out others were even worse than Johnny pictured himself. One guard had the audacity to enter into partnership with a convict to run a barbershop. The guard smuggled in the fatty water by the "underground route" and the prisoner paddled it, his place of business being a wall concealed cavelike in a corner of the walled yard. A hospital orderly sold cocaine and morphine from the hospital stores. A cook, when discharged after his time was up, walked out with seven hundred dollars in his pocket although he had not a cent when he was sentenced, all of it made by selling dainties and extra rations to the wealthier inmates. Several guards have already been suspended and a general shake-up and reorganization is being brought about behind those high grey walls.

Cheques totalling $313,397.61 are being sent out from the City Hall as a "cheerful May Day present from the city to its various creditors. The whole sum comprises Montreal's half yearly payment of interest on the various civic loans, including interest on the loans of the several municipalities which were last year annexed to the city. Nearly two millions of dollars are expended

AFTER A BEAR SKIN

"Contrived?"
Two men there were with hunting crew,
Who would not be called cowards.
But when you find it their way
Were always on the spur, al-

I heard them used to turn cattle off,
But never forgot to lose the wife
Until she said "This shan't happen again."
Just so, a day or two ago,
The bear had come along,
Upon the snow-covered mountain's Goat,
A monster bear. They said.
"If I had a gun, I'd shoot him," says Frank,
"But I don't have one." says Frank.
"And if I fall to knock him out,
A chance is left for you."
They wandered up the hills and West,
Till near their nest, but think how they Would have been lost, had they not been
With bear traps which have
Its tail, they found, was long;
It wriggled around once or twice,
Then lay still, and then it was gone.
The tall trees that tried to catch
But branch by branch kept breaking.
The "bear," they thought, tree could Give them both a shaking.
But Frank had courage like a knife,
And never stopped down-hill.
He shot "brun" if he started,
But, oh! a sweet run or two they brown.
They look at one another, then break a row,
And bell tones round them now forever.
The guns were ridges of their shot,
Skeletoons pathways their sought.
Avoiding little snowings:

It's not the first time Frank's been stung
By bear traps, but he's not afraid.
And sometimes we go too far,
Then feel like — and blazes.

GALA DAY FOR ODD FELLOWS

Blairmore Lodge, No. 68, Celebrated the 92nd Anniversary of the Order

ON SUNDAY AFTERNOON LAST.

Held Public Parade and Attended Service in Central Baptist Church

Sunday last was a big day for Blairmore Lodge, No. 68 Independent Order of Odd Fellows. It was the day on which this lodge celebrated the ninety-second anniversary of the introduction of Odd Fellowship into America.

About 2 o'clock in the afternoon the brethren assembled in their neat and commodious lodge room at 860 Victoria Street. Here the members enjoyed themselves in pleasant conversation and greeted a large contingent of smiling Odd Fellows from Coleman, who were conveyed here in rigs and trucks to participate in this event, thereby returning the compliment paid them by Blairmore Odd Fellows the previous day.

The old P. Burn's butcher shop is being moved from its old place between Fifth and Sixth avenues to the corner of Ninth avenue and Vic-other corner, and with machine it will start.

Business of importance calls for a large attendance at the next regular meeting of Blairmore

Lodge, No. 68, I. O. O. F., to be held on Tuesday next.

Louise Wilson and Grace Gray

were charged before Justice Plakney on Saturday for selling liquor with a license. They pleaded guilty and were each fined $200 and $6.75

costs in each case.

H. F. Kenny, secretary of the Alberta Sunday School Association, will be in Blairmore on Friday, May 5, and will speak at the Central Baptist church at 7 p.m.

A hearty invitation is extended to all the pastor, Rev. J. F. Hunter, who is also Noble Grand of Blairmore Lodge, delivered an eloquent sermon on the words: "Am I my brother's keeper?" and "What is my neighbor?" The speaker pointed out many of the ideals of the order and showed that true brotherhood meant love and veneration for He Who ruler high, and a regard and protection for mankind and a

keep from all the evil sources which so cunningly tend to trap and drag men down, and that as Latimer said in his sermon before Edward IV, in 1500, "He is my neighbor who needs me, and I am his if I act

the part of a neighbor."

After the service in the church was over, the procession wound its way up State Street,

along Sixth Avenue to Victoria

Street and back to the hall where detectable edibles and impromptu speeches engaged the attention of about seventy

Old Fellows and Rebekahs

until about 6:30 p.m. when a pleasant gathering dispersed.

Killed at Crow's Nest

An Italian named G. De Marco, was instantly killed at Crow's Nest on Saturday evening last. It appears that seven holes were loaded and six were successfully fired, but the seventh blast scattered the rocks in all directions with the result that a sharp-edged stone flew to the right and struck G. De Marco, who was standing a long distance off and struck him in the head; pierced his skull and caused instant death. This occurred at 5:30 o'clock and was to be the last shot for the day and for the week. The dead body was taken to Michel where it was interred on Monday.

Commissioner Duthie held an inquest at Coleman Monday evening. The following verdict was rendered: "We find that G. De Marco was killed by a blast of rock while engaged at his work as quartermaster, at the Summit Lime Works, on April 27th. We consider his death was purely accidental and we attach no blame to anyone."
